

XM Radio provides incredible variety in its programming that is unavailable anywhere else. As I pay for this service and it is therefore my choice I find it reprehensible that the National Association of Broadcasters wishes to dictate what I listen to. Becasue of XM I now listen to radio again as the traditional available stations do not offer what the market desires. Perhaps they should get their games up to speed instead of trying to kill off the competition. Accordingly, I would respectfully request that the FCC reject totally the NAB's desire to limit freedom of speech in this country to only what they have to say and not allow the fear of competition to remove a very valuable communication tool.
